

Hiding the 'jog'

In the Facebook group there was a request for a video to learn how to hide the 'jog'. To show how you can hide the 'jog' I crocheted this little bag.

For this video I used a thicker cotton, so it is easier to see what I am doing. I intentionally started with blue and then switched to purple. I did this so you can really see what a 'jog' looks like.

The start of the round does not have to be a straight line. For this pattern the start of the round goes diagonally over the bag.

Right handed video, Hiding the 'jog'

Left handed video, Hiding the 'jog' \(left handed\)

This little pattern, that I used for the video, has a repeat of 24 stitches. It is only a graph of the side.

Black line is the start of the round

Red line is an increase

Green line is a decrease

Right handed version

Left handed version

